Finding Science Journal Articles at Lovejoy Library

Many article indexes such as Ovid MEDLINE or Current Contents do not provide full text access. These databases contain citations (complete publication information of an article) and often include abstracts.

SFX is a tool that lists all our online journal subscriptions and lets you link from one index to another to access full text journals and magazines.

Use these quick methods to find out if we have a particular journal available online or in print.

1. If you have an article citation, you can search for the journal name in SFX and then link to the full-text if available.
   - Click on eJournals by Title (SFX) under Find Articles on the library homepage.
   - Type all or a portion of the journal title. Do not use abbreviations.
   - Click on the journal name to see if it is available in full-text for the date you need.
   - Fill in the citation information and click GO to access the full-text.
   - If you are off-campus, you will be asked for your nine-digit university ID number.

You can follow the SFX link in indexes such as Current Contents or MEDLINE to quickly see if the article is available in full text elsewhere.

Click on the Find Full Text to link directly to full-text if it is available, or to see if it is available in print. If not, you can link directly to Interlibrary Loan (ILLiad) to request it.
2. Search for a journal title in the library's catalog to see if we subscribe to it in print. On the library's home page, under Quick Links, go to Our Library Catalog. Enter the name of the journal.

- Change Any word Anywhere to Start of Journal/Mag and click GO.
- Scroll to the bottom of the record to see the Location and Details (Location=Journal Collection, Microform, or Microfiche).
- Make sure the library has the volumes/years you are looking for
- Journals are shelved alphabetically on the 2nd floor of the library.
